Roy Rogers RCA Victor model 9EY36

By Phil Vourtsis

The Roy Rogers 45 record player is quite rare and sought after by collectors of phonographs and Roy Rogers memorabilia. The standard 9EY3 bakelite case was painted white with the latest 1950s lead based paint. That's right, only the children played records on lead painted players. There was a sticker on the bottom of the machine that indicated there was lead in the paint.

The decals are quite colorful but tend to turn yellow with age. Now it is possible to make new decals that are just the right colors by using scanners and color printers. Then the colors are adjusted via software.

The Roy Rogers model was sold in 1949. You could buy Roy or a model with Disney decals. The mechanics and electronics were identical to the 9EY3 except for tamper resistant screws so little Joey wouldn't electrocute himself.

J & D Auctions doing very well

By Phil Vourtsis

A couple of years ago, two of the younger members of the New Jersey Antique Club created an LLC, JD Auction Services. Although almost anything can be auctioned, their specialty at this time is Antique Radio including TV, audio, test equipment, military radios and phonographs.

The Northeast seems to be a fertile area for this equipment because much of it was designed and manufactured there. When you add the advanced age of most of the collectors you can understand why there is a need for auctioning. If your collection needs trimming give them a call.

Record Collecting

By Phil Vourtsis

Collecting phonographs is a challenge when it comes to displaying them. But since most collectors also collect the records to play on the phonographs it creates another challenge. This collector at least knows where his records are. I tried alphabetizing my records by title. Then I tried separating them by decade. It worked for a while until I played a stack or two and got lazy not putting them back. Then the stacks would get mixed. Ever since I was a kid I would gladly take the records out to play but then leave them out when I was finished listening.

You said no more records I said no, more records

Another Summer Barbecue

By Phil Vourtsis

Many of us phono-fanatics enjoyed another delicious barbecue at Ray Ayling's place. The weather was decent and there were plenty of goodies to buy or trade. Ray also showed us his Seeburg Select-o-matic jukebox for the home.

Chuck from Brooklyn New York looks like he might have found something interesting.

Ray is overjoyed with his Seeburg Select-O-matic Jukebox.
